THE NEW GENERATION

By JANE PHELPS

TED WALTERS IS EXPECTED FOR EASTER VACATION.

CHAPTER 78.

Alone, Margaret's thoughts invariably reverted to Joan. She soliloquized:

"Margaret Hayden, you have got to make her think you are the most interesting person she ever met. Those people she knows have something about them that is different, and she is thrilled by it. Don't ask her any more questions, and stop worrying about her. She is all right so far, and I am sure she will not go far wrong ever. But I want her confidence, and I want it freely, because she thinks me one of what she calls 'her kind.' It's rather hard to be making myself over after her pattern just as I have begun to enjoy myself, but it must be done."

She asked Joan to tea. To her disappointment they were not alone, yet an eye upon him ever since his arrival.

"He's dead in love with Mumsie! A blind man could see that," she said to herself as she saw the look in his eyes when they rested upon Margaret.

All the guests soon left except Craig, who lingered.

"Why doesn't he go? Doesn't he know he isn't wanted?" Joan fumed.

"How do you like being free and rid of the trammels of college life?" he asked Joan.

"I like it!" Joan replied. "There would be no pleasure in living if one were not perfectly free to give their own personality expression in every way, even as to their living surroundings."

"I like it too, Joan. I love to live here in this dear little apartment with my nice old Hannah. I feel like a cat that has been rubbed the right way," Margaret broke in, sensing Joan's disapprobation.

"But your way is as conventional as it takes all the thrills from life to live as everyone expects you to—as they do." Then, "I suppose you do feel sort of different from what you did at home in the country."

Sort of different! Margaret felt like laughing aloud. She, too, was free. She smiled at her daughter, who had risen to go.

Sort of different! Why, Joan, I am different. I have developed my personality to a certain extent—not as you have, of course, for you have been allowed your freedom until you were old enough to decide for yourself. You have always been free. Sit down, dear, and Craig, you run along, Joan and I have to talk clothes, and you would be bored to death."

"Your word is law, dear lady," he rose at once. "Goodnight, Joan," he said cordially, but he kissed Margaret's hand.

"What an old dear he is!" Margaret said when she and Joan were alone. "His manners are such a relief after the take-it-for-granted manners of many men."

"He's as old-fashioned as the hills!"

"Yes, he is of an older generation, my dear. But we still like the hills, even if they are old, don't we?"

"Oh, he's just hanging around you trying to get you to marry him. I hate him!"

Her vehemence really surprised Margaret. Not for some time had Joan spoken so emphatically. It was not Craig Forrester whom she meant she hated, it was any man, all men who tried to steal her mother's affections. But Margaret ignored the heated remark.

"Come, dear, we must look over my wardrobe. There isn't time to have a new evening gown made for you, and Janet is going to give a small dinner dance for Ted Saturday night."

"It's beautiful, Mumsie!" Joan said a few moments later as she looked at herself in the mirror. The girl's evening gown of blue and silver was exquisitely becoming, and Margaret hoped Ted Walters would find Joan as irresistible as she did.

BEAUTY CHATS

TEMPTATIONS.

Once I lived with a woman who said she was going to reduce. She was a very interesting study. She tried to deceive me about what she was eating because she had said she was going to reduce and didn't like me to know that she was eating all sorts of little delicacies on the sly. She even deceived herself, because she had told herself that she was going to reduce and she had to admit she wasn't doing it. It's something like cheating oneself at solitaire.

She started out bravely by refusing sugar and cream in her tea. She kept this up for a little while, but she always looked resentful when all her friends said that her tea then milk and that if we did the proper thing we would all drink tea as the Chinese do and taste its delicate flavor instead of musty tea with milk and sugar. She was allowed lemon in her tea, but after a week or so, she began saying that, after all, half a teaspoonful of sugar was not very fattening and she would make it up by not having a second buttered muffin. Only somehow or other she always took the second buttered muffin anyway!

And that is the reason why fat women gain weight when they go on a reduction diet. They go without all sorts of things in their minds. They think about refusing food so much that I am sure most of them believe they have actually refused it.

This special friend of mine began reducing very strenuously. She ate almost nothing for one meal with the result that by the time the second meal came along she was so ravenously hungry that she ate everything in sight, and probably a lot more than she should have. She could have reduced by her brief fast.

C. S. S. Olive oil will cleanse and nourish the skin to a certain extent, but it is not as good as a fine cream. The latter has other things in it which are a benefit to the skin, while the former is limited. If you prefer to use the olive oil you can feel sure that it will not cause a growth of hair.

Grandma: Grey hair should always be shampooed with a fine white soap. If there was a way of keeping the hair clean without any soap, it would be better still. However, to offset this bluing is used in the last time, as soap has a tendency to make grey hair yellow instead of the blue-white which is so much more desirable.

Interested Reader: A band of black ribbon velvet is often worn around the throat because it is very becoming to certain types and does help to hold up and hide a sagging neck. If you use an astringent several times each week it will help to keep all the muscles of face and throat from sagging. You can preserve any lotion by adding a very small quantity of salicylic acid to it. Your chemist will know how much you should use according to the lotion that you have.

SHE IS CHAMPION BUILDER OF HOMES

Miss Elsie Lempe. Admitted that woman's natural task is that of a "home builder," there are few who engage in it on such a large scale as Miss Elsie Lempe of Wilmington, N. C. Most women confine their efforts to one small kitchenette apartment or small house and a garden in the suburbs. Miss Lempe, however, manages one of the largest lumber mills in America, which yearly transforms millions of feet of lumber into houses.

Each year Miss Lempe's plant, which has a force of 400 workers, 90 per cent of whom are men, turns out enough dwellings, of portable variety, to house a city of 50,000. This young woman, who is a graduate of the University of Michigan, knows the art of home construction perhaps better than many men architects and engineers in her own field, for she knows not only engineering and architecture, but she also knows the requirements of a real home from the viewpoint of the housekeeper.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Mrs. Mary Crowder, mother of Maj. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, died at her home here early today, aged 88 years. Interment will be at Trenton, Mo.

Believed to be the highest inhabited house in the world is a stone hotel in the Donkia Pass, Tibet, which is occupied every summer by a Tibetan outpost of four or five men. The house stands at a height of 18,400 feet, three and a half miles.

BROWNATONE

LOCAL ART LOAN OF WOMAN'S CLUB IS BIG SUCCESS

By KORA HENRY-MEACHAM.

From the art of old Spain to 1932 Impressionistic portraiture and decorative realism seems a long range in the way of paintings but a catholicity of taste would find something interesting in the various phases of art represented by the local loan exhibit at the Woman's club on Friday afternoon.

Among those which seemed the favorites were: "The Fire Priest of Montezuma," by J. H. Sharp, loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Max Nordhaus; "The Drummers," by Sauer, loaned by H. P. Robinson; "Meditation," by Harold Knight, loaned by S. T. Vann and "The Cornfield," by his wife, Laura Knight, loaned by Mrs. W. R. Walton. The Knights rank very high among English artists and are representatives of the Cornish school of art.

A group of ten paintings in the H. P. Robinson collection comprised a "Mesaera Indian Women," by Barnum; an Indian head study by Burbank, and several of Mr. Robinson's own excellent portraits of Indians and other paintings of Indian atmosphere.

Mrs. Pierce Roddy sent in a bright bit of New Mexico autumn caught on Gilegoes way by Theodore Van Soelen. Gustave Bauman was represented by several wood block prints. Miss Louise Lowther, Mrs. A. Gustorf, and Miss Katherine MacMillan having loaned their treasures. There were canvases by Rollins, August Kitz, Bert Phillips and some interesting etchings by Beroin. The latter gives one the idea of our "vast and lonesome purple spaces," the great depths of our canyons, and the heights of our mountains.

Much interest was shown in the oil portraits of Laguna types of Indians as done by Planchet, who was present at the exhibition. His work is that of a realist and with this understanding you will feel the realism; the decorative part—the Indians are life size, their blankets a vivid splash of color and one portrait might be decorative, but two would be an awful crowd.

There was a group of nine paintings in oil representing Albuquerque, by Edwin of the Well Country camp, loaned by Dr. Evelyn Frisbie. The artist is self-taught and has been painting here about six years. Two canvases, "The Valley of the Peace," from perhaps out Old Town way, and "The Shower in Tlaxcala Canyon," brought forth much favorable comment.

In one corner of the room were grouped something new—very new—some Impressionistic, cubistic stuff by local artists, also. It had its share of attention but the effect on the beholder was unusual, not to say hilarious. If art is the adaptation of means toward an end, which may be practical, then the practical business of making a picture is a proof that the paintings were not. Perhaps not fine art, but art of a sort. One puzzled, though polite, lady said it must be the new art, and another, "None of these like pictures I've seen in the back of an old Bible we have at home. They were Egyptian women; it must be very old art, and that's why we don't get it."

Mrs. N. T. Armijo loaned an old heirloom of her family that was 150 years old. The painting is "Calvary" and was brought from Spain by her grandfather, Don Francisco Xavier Chavez, who was the first governor of New Mexico under the republic of Mexico. Mrs. George K. Angle had a portrait on exhibition, and Governor Steyer had a much prized painting of the battle of the Alabama, and the Kearns, of civil war times. One of the most interesting spectators was little Miss Eunice Neal Huntman, not yet thirteen, who had three of her own canvases on the wall. Other paintings by Albuquerque artists were water colors by Mrs. S. R. Miller, a pastel, "Psycho by the Sea," by Mrs. R. L. Woolton; "Holbycks," painted by Mrs. George Wheeler when she was 16, original paintings of Florida scenes by Mrs. Bess Sutton and two mountain scenes by D. J. Cook. The committee was especially gratified by the response of the loaning the pictures and by the genuine interest shown by those who came in all afternoon and until 5:30 o'clock. The next meeting of the club is business day to which all members are always urged to come and take an interest.

At some previous meeting there were misplaced some valuable hand-made silver spoons. Newman design. They have been found and the owner may get them from the club from Mrs. Gould, the president, it has been announced.

292 POLISH ORPHANS BEGIN LAST LAP OF A TRIP AROUND WORLD

(By The Associated Press.)

New York, Jan. 28.—The steamship Princess Matoka, sailing for Danzig, had on her passenger lists 292 Polish orphans who were beginning the last lap of a trip around the world. They fled from their native land two years ago to escape starvation and death in the wake of the red bolshevik armies, then driving hard against the Polish forces defending the capital of that republic.

The little globe trotters are to be returned to Warsaw, where the Polish government will find homes for them.

When the children awakened this morning aboard the vessel, Red Cross workers were on hand to present them with gifts and wish them bon voyage.

When the children reached Siberia in their flight they were taken in charge by officials of the American relief society and sent to this country by way of Japan. From Seattle they were sent to Chicago, where they are now in an orphan asylum. Almost two years elapsed before the completion of arrangements which will give them homes in Poland.

Belief in the evil eye is common among the peasantry of Spain. A star's horn is considered a good safeguard, and small horns, tipped with silver, are frequently hung about the children's necks.

BOUFFANT TAFFETA DANCE FROCKS ARE FAVORITES FOR LATE WINTER

Youth and femininity, always alluring in femininity, are enhanced by the new taffeta dancing frocks which are popular now and promise to continue so until late spring. The frocks are of a variety of styles as well as in the high colors. They are crisp, bouffant dresses which have a hint of spring in their faint, radiant, as well as in their colors and full skirts and the lines usually followed by these frocks.

This charming model is built on lines which hint of the old-fashioned costumes of our grandmothers with its semi-fitted bodice and full gathered skirt. Diminutive sleeves and a tiny shirred yoke of tulle in no way detract from the simplicity of the bodice. Medallions of the tulle are set in the skirt in the center of each section and these medallions are outlined with flowers. A tulle hem with an edge of corded fineline, the scalloped skirt. That is just the frock to please the young who is setting her first real party frock.

EFFICIENT HOUSEKEEPING

CONTRIBUTED RECIPES.

The following recipes were most generously sent in by our readers for me to publish, so that as her column readers might enjoy them. From a Reader—Eggs, Cocoa, Cakes: 1 cup granulated sugar, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1 cup sour milk or buttermilk, 1 teaspoon of soda, 1-2 cup of coconut sifted with about 1-4 cup of flour, 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract. Dissolve the soda in the sour milk, cream the sugar and butter together and add the sour milk and the flour and cocoa mixture. Beat the vanilla. If I make a loaf cake, I add the yolk of the egg to the egg whites. I thought some of the readers would like to try it while eggs are so high.

Unassigned Reader—Molasses Cookies: 1 egg or 2 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup shortening, 1 cup of molasses, 1-4 teaspoon each of ground cinnamon, ginger and cloves, and 4 1-2 cups of flour. Stir these ingredients together and add 2 level teaspoons of soda which have been dissolved in 1-2 cup of hot water; once more stir well, then let stand overnight to grow light. In the morning shape into cookies and bake.

Suet Pudding: 1 cup chopped suet mixed with 1 cup each of raisins and currants and 1 cup maple or corn syrup. This mixture well, then add to it 1 cup of sour milk and 2 level teaspoons of soda sifted with a very little flour. Stir until it foams, then add enough extra flour to form a stiff batter. Steam one and one-half hours.

E. D.—Sweet Potato Pies: Bake three medium sized sweet potatoes, scoop out the pulp and mash, seasoning with paprika, melted butter and a very little milk. Beat with a fork until light. Sift into a bowl 1 large cup each

LAS VEGAS MUSICIANS ORGANIZING NEW BAND

(Special Correspondence to the Journal.)

Las Vegas, N. M., Jan. 28.—Eighteen men, all of whom have had experience in musical work, have begun the formation of a band. The former bands have suffered from internal dissension, but the new organization is endeavoring to avoid such a fate by putting management and direction entirely in the hands of a man or committee competent to make the band entirely musical and not argumentative. The election of officers will be held early in the week.

One of the "blue laws" of early colonial days prohibited a woman from kissing her child on the Sabbath or fasting day.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN HANDS

Press the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter-pint of harmless and delicious lemon-bleach lotion to soften and whiten red, rough or chapped hands. This home-made lemon lotion is far superior to glycerin and rose water to smoothen the skin. Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, because it doesn't irritate.

NEW MEXICO SLOW TO REGISTER ITS NURSES SAYS VISITING NURSE

New Mexico and Nevada are the only states in the union without state registration of graduate nurses, declared Miss Anna C. Janine, president of the National Nurses Association of California, who addressed the graduate nurses of the New Mexico state association on Thursday afternoon at the St. Joseph sanatorium. Her address was "Organization, State Registration and Nursing Education."

The idea of registration was first brought up in 1901 at a meeting of nurses at Buffalo, according to the speaker. Delegates to the meeting organized state associations with great enthusiasm over registration. The nurse perceived that her professional standing was nothing unless the law had some legal claim. It is only through the law that we can define just what a nurse stands for and just what a school is, said Miss Janine.

A two-years' course in nursing and in some states, a 28-month course, is provided for by law, and the speaker, who is the only nurse in the United States who has been better if we eliminate a new deal of the household duties. In some hospitals there are employed attendants who do the work which was formerly done by nurses during their three-years' course, thereby relieving her of a great deal of work not necessary, and she can finish her course in a much shorter time.

Organization of nurses started in 1915 when the American Nurses association and the National League of Nurses met in San Francisco during the exposition. The first school of nursing was established in 1912. Organizations of graduates formed the national association in 1928.

POCKET PICKED OF $10 WHILE SAYING GOOD-BYE LAS VEGAS MAN CLAIMS

(Special Correspondence to the Journal.)

Las Vegas, N. M., Jan. 28.—That "lady" whose name he does not name picked his pocket of $10 in currency while shaking hands in farewell, is the story of George Griffith, who runs a rooming house toward the south end of Railroad avenue. Griffith has asked the arrest of the woman who he says, departed with a man she said was her husband, on a Santa Fe freight train bound for Albuquerque. Griffith stated that the two came to his hotel and said they were penniless and hungry. He gave them a night's lodging and two meals. Griffith said the woman was 5 feet 4 inches in height, wore a blue dress and leggings and one leg was swollen from hopping freight trains. Her companion was about 25 years of age.

Man's Trouble Arrested

"The past 4 years I have been going down down with colds and grippe of the stomach and had to give up work a year ago because of my weakened condition. I suffered terribly from bleeding and colic attacks. My wife, a wonderful nurse, was recommended to me. I took a course of it and am now feeling fine." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and always the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will cleanse the money market. For sale by Briggs' Pharmacy and druggists everywhere.
